Newspaper Staff Bid Farewell To Three Retiring Volunteers

by Krystal Nancoo-Russell

Marie Wong, Meta Lagerwerff and Leonie Penney enjoy the luncheon in their honor.

Three women with decades of volunteer service among them were honored on Friday by the Greenbelt News Review during a special luncheon.

The event took place at the Sir Walter Raleigh Inn on Greenbelt Road and Leonie Penney, Meta Lagerwerff and Marie Wong were the guests of honor.

The women are ending their volunteer work with the paper. They all worked at the advertising desk.

Friends and other volunteers of the paper were present to thank them for their service and wish them farewell.

Penney, 94, worked for more than three decades at the Greenbelt News Review, starting out proofing the advertisements.

She remembers the early days of the paper.

"The whole paper was pieced together on the floor. It was quite a sight," she recalled.

Penney moved to the United States from Holland in 1948 as an economist with the World Bank.

After meeting her husband, Walter, and getting married, Penney stayed at home for several years to raise her three children.

She then returned to work, this time at the Department of Agriculture and complemented her master's degree in economics from the University of Amsterdam with a master's in computer science from the University of Maryland.

Penney put those skills to good use when she did her volunteer work, coming into the newspaper's office a few times a week to input ad sales information in the computer.

She said what she enjoyed most about her time spent at the Greenbelt News Review was the warmth of the people there.

"I always say if you do nice things, then you meet nice people. It's a nice group of people, a good atmosphere," she said.

Penney's homeland connection at the Greenbelt News Review is through fellow volunteer Lagerwerff, who also immigrated in 1948.

Lagerwerff, 89, came into the newspaper's office a few times a week, although her duties were different from Penney's.

"I worked the telephone and sent calls around. When the ad people would come in, they might have forgotten to add a telephone number or they would want me to write the ad for them,

75th Anniversary

Business Journal Highlights Longtime Cooperative Action

by Virginia Beauchamp

Sally Meredith was editor of the Greenbelt Cooperator, this newspaper under its earlier name. And this year – like our fellow cooperative, the Greenbelt Credit Union – we at the News Review will celebrate our 75th year. What, you ask, do these facts have in common?

Both are noted together in the current July/August issue of "CBJ/Cooperative Business Journal" highlighting the city's anniversary. Sally's picture – hard at work at her typewriter – appears on the CBJ cover. Then under the picture, in tiny type, appears the date, 1937.

The photograph will look familiar to anyone around for a while in this city. You can find it on page 125 in the 50th anniversary volume, "Greenbelt: History of a New Town." But there its date – correctly – is 1942.

Putting aside that small error, the Journal's focus on Greenbelt in a full-page feature on page 4 brings Greenbelt's story up to date.

The article lists the Greenbelt Co-op Supermarket & Pharmacy (to us, of course, the Co-op), the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union, Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (that we know as GHI), the Greenbelt Nursery School, the New Deal Café and of course this newspaper.

per by its current name – all as other Greenbelt co-ops.

Also listed is Rapidan Camps – not strictly a Greenbelt entity, though Greenbelters began the cooperative camp in Virginia and still run it.

Nit-picking aside, the Journal article features GHI's long-term, now-retired president Sylvia Lewis. She appears not in that role but as coordinator of the Greenbelt Cooperative Alliance. "We find great strength in meeting and working together," she says, as the article quotes her.

75th Anniversary

"We knew the city of Greenbelt already had big plans for 2012," Lewis continues, "... and since our co-ops were also celebrating 75 years in business, we felt this was our anniversary too."

Featured in the article are the alight dance theater, including a picture of two young dancers in a work called "Hometown Heroes: 75 Years of Extraordinary Greenbelt Women"; Lewis herself in dark glasses; and in a third photo an un-named member of Transitions Theater performing a monologue in a recent show called "Greenbelt Voices."

Council Holds Worksession With Advisory Group Chairs

by Yagana Shah

The Greenbelt City Council met with the chairs of its advisory groups in a special worksession on Monday, July 30. Mayor Pro Tem Emmett Jordan kicked off the meeting by acknowledging the efforts of these advisory groups. "These groups are the lifeblood of the city," Jordan said, adding that Greenbelt would not be able to accomplish many things without their efforts.

Council and the advisory groups meet about once every two years to discuss challenges the groups are facing and to propose ideas for improvement. Chairs from 10 such advisory groups were present, each chair sharing their group's recent accomplishments and their upcoming plans.

First to speak, the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability (GreenACES) Chair, John Lippert, requested that council send a letter of opposition to the Prince George's County Council asking them to change their focus on a draft 10-year solid waste management plan, which involves waste transfer processing.

GreenACES hopes the county will consider other options, shifting their focus to recycling and composting methods, Lippert said. Councilmember Konrad Herling assured him that the waste management issue will be discussed in a Four Cities meeting with College Park, Berwyn Heights and New Carrollton. They are aware of the concerns, Herling said.

Board of Elections

Pamela Gregory, Board of Elections chair, said the board is concerned about recruiting quality election judges. She urged council to refer the names of residents who might become involved. The board also needs suggestions for promoting early election efforts. Council and advisory chairs then went on to discuss the popularity of extended voting hours and weekend voting as well as distributing flyers to notify residents of early voting opportunities.

Discussion then turned to recruitment and appointment processes for the advisory groups. The city, for example, advertises openings on the city website. "I think we've been doing quite a bit to try and distribute the information widely," Jordan said.

Information on the advisory boards is also distributed through local homeowners associations and in welcome packets to new residents. "It seems to be a challenge sometimes, recruiting people to fill openings," Jordan said. Serving on the advisory groups is fun and it's a chance to

by Jim Link

They are cool under pressure.

Alert and busy but not frazzled, Principal Warren Tweedy and Assistant Principals J. Searcy and Raquel Talley are immersed in the stressful minutiae of their imminent move to the spanking new Greenbelt Middle School building, which sits only a few hundred yards behind the old school. Stacks of cardboard boxes packed with books, official records and office supplies litter the old main office, ready to be carted to the new. The new school has a new address: 6301 Breezewood Drive.

Finishing touches are still being applied to the new building and it will open on time, insists Tweedy. "The students arrive on August 20, the first day of school. Faculty and staff will

Letters to the Editor

Oops!

I just picked up my copy of the Greenbelt News Review today so you probably already heard about this. But in case you didn't, I wanted to let you know how ironic it is that there is a proofreading error in the article about proofreading. I was reading it starting on page 1 where it was continued on page 6. The article ended on page 6 with "that's why I . . .".

There was no direction to be continued on another page nor could I find the end of the article anywhere. Again, how ironic.

Editor's Note: Yes, loyal Greenbelt News Review readers – seen also by dismayed staff online early Thursday, too, when it had already been printed. We were followed by countless other people including our proofers, several of whom supposed this was intentional to draw attention to the need for and importance of proofers. Call 301-474-4131 to leave your name and number if you want to join our proofing crews.

Oops, Part II And Thanks!

Thank you so much for posting our daughter's engagement announcement in last week's News Review. We have lived in Greenbelt for 28 years and we still watch for "our" paper every Thursday. It is such a special and personal publication in many ways.

The response of well wishes from neighbors and friends who saw the piece has been great fun this week. (Although Heather has received some jokes about her up-coming marriage to Bill's father as "her" Bill is IV, not III.) The photo should have cleared any confusion!

Thanks to you all at the News Review for a beautiful job which warmed our hearts and helped us feel connected to neighbors we don't always see.

Beth Norden

Correction

Oh, No! What a place for a glaring error – at the end of the proofreader article starting on page one last week and ending on page 6. The proofers had nothing to do with this and couldn't have prevented it. On the final midnight review of the electronic version before it goes to the printer, a correction-induced page shift dropped the last word from the article. Readers could not have known what was omitted. The final sentence, a quote from Sue Krocchik, should have read: "They needed help, so that's why I went."

Red-faced apologies to our greatly valued, obviously needed proofreaders, as well as to readers, from the final midnight edit crew.

Whooping Crane Tour At Patuxent Refuge

On Saturday, August 4 at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. ages 14+ can join refuge staff for a behind-the-scenes tour of the Patuxent Research Refuge to observe the endangered whooping cranes and more. Tours, lasting about an hour, will leave on time. Space is limited and advance registration is required; call 301-497-5887.

The Visitor Center is on Powder Mill Road between the B-W Parkway and Rt. 197 at 10901 Scarlet Tanager Loop, Laurel. Advance registration is required.

Tots' Program On Fancy Fish

Pre-schoolers ages 3 and 4 are invited to explore the underwater world of fish in one of the fun, hands-on programs at the Patuxent Wildlife Visitor Center Friday, August 3 from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m.

Patuxent's Visitor Center is on Powder Mill Road between the Baltimore-Washington Parkway and Rt. 197 at 10901 Scarlet Tanager Loop, Laurel. Advance registration is required.

For more information, call 301-497-5887.

Listen to One Another

Let me tell you about my weekend. On Saturday, my partner, close friend and father of my only two children passed away after a two-year battle with cancer. Forget the regular job, the classes, trips, and amusement; attention to the patient comes first.

My partner died last Saturday. Those of you who have gone through this process know how gut-wrenching it is to observe as your loved one's spirit separates from the body.

On Monday I noticed that arborists were working at a neighbor's property, so I stopped and inquired whether they would give an estimate on removing my storm-damaged tree limbs.

The boss noticed among the damaged limbs a sizeable one dangerously resting only tentatively in the crotch of another tree, ready to fall at any moment. The limb had broken from a tree on my property and landed fully on a neighbor's tree, so I paid extra for it to be brought down to earth where it could harm no one, particularly the neighbors' small children who might occasionally be playing in the wooded area.

For my thoughtfulness, I received a visit from the police based on those neighbors' complaint that I had authorized tree-cutting on their property. The police asked the arborists not to leave the trunk on the neighbors' land, but to cut it up and haul it away, which they did. Still, not a word of thanks from the complainants.

Please be kind to your neighbors. Speak to them. You don't know what tragic situations they may be undergoing. All of us should care for each other, shouldn't we?

GAC's Next Is Dear Delinquent

A refreshing upside of our recent power outage is the return of the temporarily derailed Dear Delinquent to the Greenbelt Arts Center on Saturday, August 11 (8 p.m.) and Sunday, August 12 (2 p.m.).

This droll English comedy wittily explores issues of class/ethnic differences, the idleness of the idle rich, the morality of the have-nots who react to that idleness and the (in)appropriateness of marriage between an effete, unemployed aristocrat and a beautiful, very employed thief.

Penelope Shawn jumpstarts the action when she is caught burgling Davie Warren's apartment. Warren's dubious zeal in trying to reform this feline hoyden triggers a hilarious influx of police investigators, hypocritical relatives, a jealous fiancée, self-incriminating fingerpointing. It's a frothy much ado about considerably more than nothing.

Among a uniformly effective cast Heather Martin as the mercurial cat burglar is a princess of pout, a mistress of mope. Phil Brandis as the crusty old school money-bags Sir George Martin is righteously thunderous.

Be happy that Dear Delinquent is back on the rails.

Battle of Bladensburg Ride for Bicyclists

On Saturday, August 11 cyclists are invited to join a free group social ride to the Bladensburg Marina and the Riverdale Mansion for the War of 1812 reenactment festivities.

This is an easy trail ride at a relaxed pace and lots of stops. The group will leave from Proteus Bike Shop in College Park at 11 a.m. and return to the shop at about 2 p.m. Greenbelt riders are welcome to meet at 10:30 a.m. at the New Deal Café to head over to the start.

Moonrise Gives Way to Hope

"Moonrise Kingdom" bows out of Old Greenbelt Theatre next week for "Hope Springs" to start showing on Wednesday, August 8, the film's national release date. (Be the first in your neighborhood!)

Kay Soames (Meryl Streep), primed to enliven her 30-year marriage, seeks to sell her straight-up hubby (Tommy Lee Jones) on a week-long counseling session in a seaside town called Great Hope Springs. Enter Dr. Feld (Steve Carell), smoothly probing the couple's willingness to take on new ways. A lively bar and a well-stocked bookstore provide colorful backdrop. Streep, seen earlier this year as "The Iron Lady," worked before with director David Frankel in "The Devil Wears Prada."

PG-13, for mature thematic content involving sexuality. Running time: 100 minutes.

Golden Age Club

by Bunny Fitzgerald

The Golden Age Club has a lot of interesting programs planned for coming meetings.

There was an "oops" in the last Golden Age Club report – John Mealey will speak on August 29. He will present a talk on "Wines: Thunderbird to Beaujolais." Sorry, I looked at the wrong page on my calendar.

Bob Luddy will speak on August 8. His topic is "The Civil War, Part II." Everyone enjoyed his first presentation so we invited him back.

A lovely memorial service for Ed Griffin was held on July 21 at Greenbelt Community Church.

In September we'll enjoy a tour of Graffiti House in Culpeper, Va., with the Ludlys as our guides followed by a visit to a winery.

We are pleased to report that Betty Dietrich is doing well and is in good spirits.

The Club is collecting nonperishable foods for the Food Bank. We will have a box at meetings and items will be packed up and delivered to the proper places. It's hard to believe that even in our beautiful area people are going hungry.

Remember: We all make mistakes but we all learn from our errors.

Women's Basketball Tournament Will Be Held Here August 18-19

by Sean T. Henderson

The first annual Greenbelt Women's Basketball Tournament is set to be held at the Springhill Lake Recreation Center on August 18 and 19. The tournament, for women ages 18 and above, will feature teams from Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Tournament organizers Herbert Allen and the Reverend Gregory Carter created the tournament to provide an outlet for female athletes and to help support and grow women's basketball in Greenbelt.

Allen and Carter are also the founders of the Greenbelt Lady Angels basketball team. The Lady Angels have won the M3 International Women's Basketball Tournament in Montreal for the past three years and came in a close second this year.

After struggling to bring a complete team to Montreal this year amidst the chaos of the recent storm and power outages, Allen and Carter decided it was time to start their own tournament. "Our goal is to stay local and offer a community tournament with teams from around the area," Allen said.

HOPE NOW Event At Show Place Arena

On Wednesday, August 8 from 1 to 8 p.m. there will be a free program at the Show Place Arena to work one-on-one with struggling homeowners in Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C.

Sponsored by the President's Making Home Affordable Program and the HOPE NOW Alliance, the nation's largest mortgage servicers and nonprofit counseling organizations, the event will allow homeowners struggling to make mortgage payments the opportunity to review their options and learn about possible alternatives to foreclosure.

A similar program in August 2010 drew 1,100 homeowners who received face-to-face mortgage assistance. Homeowners will be seen on a first-come, first-served basis and are encouraged to bring all mortgage documents, income documents and hardship letters. A full list of the necessary documents is available at www.MakingHome-Affordable.gov and www.HOPE-NOW.com.

The Show Place Arena is at 14900 Pennsylvania Avenue in Upper Marlboro.

Allen, who has been a basketball coach for more than 40 years, believes the Greenbelt tournament could become an important event for women's basketball in the D.C. region. He and the Reverend Carter would like to expand the scope of the tournament in subsequent years to include teams from all over the country – possibly from all over the world.

Greenbelt League

In addition to the upcoming tournament, Allen and Carter have plans to start a Greenbelt women's basketball league this winter. With the popularity of women's basketball growing, Carter feels that a local women's basketball league is in high demand.

"There are always leagues for the men to join – in the summer, the winter, the fall. But you hardly ever see anything for young ladies," Carter said.

Allen and Carter hope to make use of their community approach to basketball to help women of all ages develop their talents. As women's basketball expands its reach in Greenbelt, they plan on utilizing the teaching skills of more experienced players to help mentor young athletes in an effort to hone their skills and make the most of their talents.

"We're trying to build something here that everyone can benefit from," Carter said.

Anyone interested in getting involved in the tournament or the winter league can contact Greenbelt Recreation Coordinator Frank Jones at 240-542-2123 or fjones@greenbeltdmd.gov.

A new interfaith/sacred scripture study group is forming at Greenbelt Community Church. Daughters of the Desert, Stories of Remarkable Women from Christian, Jewish and Muslim traditions will provide the background for learning about Claire Rudolf Murphy, Meghan Nutall Sayres, Mary Cronk Farrell, Sarah Conover and Betsy Wharton.

Two choices of times are available. Wednesdays at 11 a.m. will be a nine-week study focusing on two women each week and running August 15 through October 17 (except September 12).

Alternately a book-reading style gathering on the fourth Sunday after the worship service offers time to reflect and respond to the stories of the six women during the three months.

All are invited to participate in either program.

We extend condolences to Kathy and Liz Labukas on the death of their niece, Kristin Merricks, in Florida on July 18, 2012, after a courageous battle with a chronic illness. She was the daughter of Jim Merricks and Lynn Labukas Edward, both of whom grew up in Greenbelt.

Congratulations to Bo Ritson, son of Mary Jensen of Greenbelt and Kenneth Ritson of Berwyn Heights, who was among 15 graduates from the Homeland Security and Criminal Justice Institute at Anne Arundel Community College for the Police Entrance Level Training Academy.

Marat Moore gave an inaugural keynote lecture at the Mother Jones Festival in Cork, Ireland, yesterday. The three-day festival is the first commemoration in Ireland for Mother Jones, who rose to fame a century ago as a labor organizer.

Our best wishes to Tim Edwards of Lastner Lane as he recovers from major heart overhaul surgery.

Labor Day Talent Show Auditions

Those who think they can perform in front of a live, supportive audience are invited to audition for this year's Labor Day Festival Talent Show. Auditions will be held on Saturday, August 11 and Tuesday, August 14 from 4 to 6 p.m. in Room 202 (Theater Rehearsal Room) at the Community Center.

The Talent Show will be held on the festival stage Sunday, September 2. Individual participants or at least one of the participants in a group performance must live, work or attend school in Greenbelt. Talent Show Coordinator Rick Ransom says all acts will be heard at the auditions. If deemed appropriate and showing sufficient talent, as many as possible of those auditioning will be scheduled for the show.

For further questions email rick.ransom@verizon.net.

NEWS IN REVIEW

August 2, 2012

In Her Own Words

Meet Sue Ready, GHI's New Board President

it corporation called ZERO TO THREE: National Center for Infants, Toddlers and Families before retiring.

I previously served on the GHI Board from 1997-2004 and 2005-2006, with three of those years as vice president. Additionally, I have served on and chaired several GHI committees. Over the years, I have also served on the Board of the Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery School, proofread for the Greenbelt News Review and served as a docent at the Greenbelt Museum. As you can see, I love Greenbelt!

I also love to travel, enjoy reading, and like to be out of doors communing with nature. A "child" of the sixties, I still join the occasional demonstration march.

It is a joy to be back working with such a dedicated group of volunteers. I invite you to come to a Board meeting to hear the discussion on topics of interest to you. Our agendas are posted on the GHI website at www.ghi.coop.

See you around town!

Sue

Annual Picnic to Feature Family Friendly Activities!

Volunteers Needed

Save the date for GHI's Annual Member Picnic on Sunday, October 14 from 1-3 pm. This year we'll have a moon bounce and other fun games for kids as well as a hula hoop contest and musical chairs. Join your neighbors for an afternoon of delicious food, musical entertainment, and games for kids and adults. This event is entirely member-led so we need your help to pull it off. Please email Lauren Cummings at lbcummin@hotmail.com by September 15 if you can volunteer 30 minutes of your time to help on the day of the picnic.

ATTENTION GHI MEMBERS

IT'S BUDGET PREP TIME

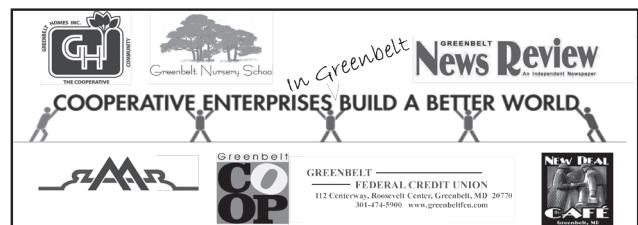

You are invited to join the Board and Finance Committee on Thursday, August 30, 2012 8:00 P.M. - GHI Board Room

Attend this important meeting to share your ideas and suggestions as we begin the 2012 budget preparation process.

If unable to attend, clip this ad and submit your comments in the space below. Drop off at the Management Office or give to any Board member.

Celebrating Co-ops: Building a Better Greenbelt for 75 Years Join the celebration on Sunday, August 12!

If you haven't heard already, the United Nations proclaimed 2012 the International Year of Co-ops and Greenbelt is celebrating its 75th Anniversary. The Greenbelt Cooperatives Alliance (GCA) invites you to join in celebratory festivities from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. in Roosevelt Center on August 12. Refresh yourselves with co-opsicles, play some Co-op Bingo, and join in on a co-op sing-along. There will be prizes and you can purchase keepsakes and find out more about our cooperative heritage at tables staffed by all seven local Greenbelt co-ops, the Greenbelt 75th Anniversary Committee, and the National Cooperative Business Association. For more information, visit the GCA website www.alliance.greenbelt.coop.

Attention GHI Members: 30-Day Member Feedback Recommendations on Unauthorized Rentals

The Board of Directors has asked for a 30-day member feedback period on the recommendations made by the Task Force on Unauthorized Rentals. The recommendations can be viewed at www.ghi.coop or at the Administration Building.

Submit written comments by email to: mgmtoffice@ghi.coop or you may drop them off at the Administration Building on Hamilton Place, attention: Sheri Swaim.

All comments are due no later than Friday, August 24, 2012.

Storm Damage Cleanup Continues

Tree damage and cleanup from the late June storm is continuing. GHI maintenance staff estimates indicate that the cleanup process will likely take one more month. Damage to our trees was across the community, and several downed trees are yet to be cleared. Priority cleanup focused upon those situations of high hazard and risk. Thankfully, property damage was minimal! Typically, not all damage is observed or reported right after the storm, and we expect some more damage reports to come in this fall, after the leaves are down. If you do see broken tree limbs or other damage please notify the GHI Maintenance Department.

Ready to Remodel?

Are you thinking about making kitchen improvements or building an addition to your GHI home? How about adding a shed or fence to your back yard? Not sure what GHI rules are? Rean in Technical Services can help guide you to find out what the rules are and what types of improvements need a permit. It's always better to know ahead of time! Contact Rean at 301-474-4161, ext. 143 or email: rseecharran@ghi.coop.

GMS Principal Warren Tweedy shows off the school slogan "We Are Reaching for Success!"

than previously are enrolled from Greenbelt, Springhill Lake, Berwyn Heights and Hollywood Elementary schools.

Snatching a few moments from their hectic day, the triumvirate (Tweedy, Searcy, Talley) agreed unanimously that their jobs were stimulating. "I enjoy it – it's very exciting," said Tweedy.

"I'm definitely excited about the move," said Talley.

"Actually I'm always excited here, not just because we're moving," said Searcy.

"We stay busy," added Tweedy, rolling his eyes upward, then glancing at the two women, who laughed with him.

Tweedy was proud that "we made our AMOs." GMS learned about three weeks ago that it had "met every proficiency in every sub group (math and reading) mandated by the Maryland Department of Education," he said.

The AMO (Annual Measurable Objectives) formerly were the AYP (Adequate Yearly Progress). "This is the first time ever we have done this," beamed Tweedy.

He credited Brenda Rorie, the school's testing coordinator. "She's the guru! She made it happen," exclaimed Tweedy, pointing at Rorie.

Laughing, Rorie deflected the compliment: "No, no, it wasn't me. It was the students and teachers."

meet your neighbors while looking at issues the city is facing, Jordan added.

Recruitment flyers should be created and placed in libraries and other public places with committee descriptions to inform residents of opportunities, Lola Skolnik, Parks and Recreation Advisory Board chair, suggested.

Attendance Complaints

A common complaint from the advisory chairs was attendance at meetings of committee members. We need to make sure people know from the get-go that there are mandatory attendance requirements when they sign on, said Laura Kressler, Public Safety Advisory Committee chair.

Echoing her sentiments, Lippert said people need to know their time commitment is not just attending meetings. It means volunteering and spending evenings and weekends on the efforts as well. To remedy such attendance issues, the possibility of Skype or conference call presence at meetings was suggested.

The consensus was that council liaisons are doing a good job keeping lines of communication open between the council and the advisory groups. Council keeps a report of advisory board referrals and actions they have taken. They will continue to do so, making sure to add status updates to the form, as a means of tracking.

In addition, Councilmember Leta Mach added that a volunteer appreciation dinner will be held at some point in the fall.

Share a Haircut At Hair Cuttery

The Hair Cuttery "Share a Haircut" program, based on the confidence boost a child can get from a new haircut for the first day of school, provides back-to-school haircuts to needy children in the community. Customers are invited to share a haircut to a less fortunate youngster by bringing a child into a Hair Cuttery salon between August 1 and 15. For every haircut received by a child (age 18 or younger), they will provide a free haircut to a disadvantaged child. Hair Cuttery has donated a total of more than 625,000 haircuts in this annual nationwide program.

The nearest Hair Cuttery is located at Greenway. Visit www.haircuttery.com for more details.

Early Morning Bowie Bird Walk Saturday

Meet at 7:30 a.m. on Saturday, August 4 at the parking lot of the Fran Uhler Natural Area at Lemon Bridge Road just north of Bowie State University for a free Audubon Society monthly bird walk held on the first Saturday year-round.

Beginners and experts may see resident and migrating woodland and field birds and waterfowl, with good chances also to see raptor flyovers at this Patuxent River forested floodplain. There is also a chance to bird the nearby WB&A trail after the Uhler bird walk.

Waterproof footwear and binoculars are suggested. Call 410-765-6482 for more information.

Mid-Week Bird Walks At Lake Artemesia

The Prince George's Audubon Society will hold a free guided bird walk at Lake Artemesia to look for migrating and resident songbirds, waterfowl and other bird flyovers on Thursdays, August 2 and 16 at 6 p.m. The paved walk loops around the 38-acre lake and beside Indian Creek. Meet at the parking lot at Berwyn Road and Balew Avenue in Berwyn Heights. Beginners and experts are welcome. Binoculars are suggested.

Call 301-459-3375 for more information.

Art Reception Friday At Kenilworth Gardens

On Friday, August 3 at 6:30 p.m. there will be an artists' reception for Patricia Rotina Cummins' and Pearl Lau's exhibit of oils and pastels titled "Lotus, Lilies and Longevity" displayed at Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens. Timed to coincide with the closing of the show and the addition of new works done on site at the Gardens, the reception will give the public a chance to meet the artists and talk to them about their works while seeing the exhibit before it closes and returns to New York.

Cummins, whose work has been exhibited in museums and galleries nationwide, was an art instructor in New York City, an adjunct professor at Barry University Adrain School of Music and has been a National Park Service resident artist in several parks around the country.

Lau, raised in New York City, honed her skills in Manhattan, Queens College and Brooklyn College. Her art earned a Gold Award from the New York City Art Directors Club and the 2012 New York City Art Educator of the Year grant. Other grants enabled her to go to China (where she was born), India, Mexico and Washington, D.C. to continue her studies.

Kenilworth Aquatic Gardens is at 1550 Anacostia Ave., N.E.,

A Review

Abraham Lincoln, Prophet, Is Theme of GAC Play

by Carol Griffith

Intelligent and entertaining, dramatic and detailed – all are descriptions of “Lincoln and God,” the latest play by Anthony Gallo now showing at the Greenbelt Arts Center. This is Gallo’s third and best-yet production at GAC.

Was Abraham Lincoln a human messenger of God? A prophet? What was his relationship with his God? These are the questions the play explores through showing how Lincoln related to family members – even those who opposed his politics, to his staff and to the clergyman with whom he developed a close friendship. Gallo, who has clearly done a considerable amount of research into Lincoln’s life and associations, has unearthed a number of historical figures and events that, though largely lost to history, played a role in Lincoln’s life. The scenes and characters flow so easily, the play is thoroughly engrossing and entertaining.

The play begins its chronology shortly after Lincoln’s first inauguration as he debates his Confederacy-sympathizing brother-in-law (played by Pat Martin), offering him a position to no avail in the Union Army. Soon he is visited by the Reverend Phineas Densmore Gurley, pastor of the (still-standing) New York Avenue Presbyterian Church (played beautifully by David Weaver).

Their debates about God, religion and life are among the best scenes. Lincoln called for Gurley’s advice at difficult times during his terms as president and their imagined conversations are insightful.

One of the most touching scenes finds Lincoln and a critical Gurley participating in a seance conducted by a known charlatan, to appease Mary Todd Lincoln as she grieves the loss of her two sons.

Gettysburg Address

James McDaniel shows Lincoln’s humanity well. His dramatic reading of the Gettysburg Address is spine-tingling. As Nico Hay, Lincoln’s assistant, Mark Mueller gives a great performance. And special kudos to Shirl Weaver for stepping into the role of Mary Todd Lincoln on a two-hour notice on opening night and carrying it off so beautifully.

Musical selections from the talented Homespun Ceilidh Band, popular performers at GAC, set the mood for the play.

“Lincoln and God” has had staged readings presented at the Kennedy Center, the National Press Club and the Dramatists Guild of America; this is its first full-stage production. Gallo is in the process of composing, with Alan Gershwin, an opera based on the play. We’re fortunate to have the play here in Greenbelt – don’t miss this opportunity.

“Lincoln and God” will play on the Friday and Saturday evenings of August 3 and 4 at 8 p.m. A Sunday matinee will be held on August 5 at 2:30 p.m.

Reservations may be made through the box office at 301-441-8770 or at the Greenbelt Arts Center at 123 Centerway, located beneath the Co-op supermarket.

basically make it legible," she explained.

Before retiring, Lagerwerff worked at a research lab and also in the mental health industry as a counselor.

She began volunteering after she retired and counts the experience as something that brought her joy.

"I enjoyed meeting new people and solving problems and doing something useful," she said.

The work of volunteers is the lifeblood of the Greenbelt News Review, she said, and she often wonders how the paper will continue to exist as the pool of volunteers is diminishing.

"They (people) are too busy (to volunteer). They have jobs, they have kids," she said.

Lagerwerff has lived in Greenbelt for over 30 years and realizes what a gem the paper is. The public should recognize that too, she said, and take steps to get involved in its production.

"I think that if the paper folds that people will cry because there is a lot of information in it. They better do something about it or else it won't exist anymore," she said.

The Greenbelt News Review's editor Mary Lou Williamson, said the cadre of volunteers the paper has had over the years have done invaluable work.

The newspaper has been around for 75 years and has never missed an issue, she said.

"It takes a lot of people more time than you would think to be successful at it," she said.

Of Penny and Lagerwerff, Williamson said they are both hard workers who are eager to be of service.

"They're not cognizant of their age as meaning they can't do things. They're both of a mind to think as long as I can do something, I want to do it. That's their kind of personality," she said.

Williamson is hopeful that volunteers of their caliber will continue to lend their service to the newspaper.

Wong has been a volunteer for about 10 years. She was recruited by Penney, who she befriended at the Lunch Bunch events at the Community Center.

"She asked me about volunteering and asked me about it, until I finally said yes. She talked me into it," Wong said with a smile.

Wong handled the orders for the larger, boxed display ads that are the life blood of the newspaper.

"It involved some work because a lot of people didn't know what size they needed so you have to work with them to determine the proper size. There's a lot of interaction with the client, which is good because it's not just paperwork, you get to meet a lot of people," she said.

Wong enjoyed getting to know the residents of the community.

The 81-year-old mother of two worked as a librarian for several years before retiring and getting involved with the News Review.

She believes volunteering presents an opportunity for people to give back to their communities and remain connected.

"It's a good way to stay involved in society and not be stuck at home."

The Greenbelt News Review is a good place to start, she said. The paper fills a need in the community and is cherished by many residents who look forward to getting their copy weekly.

"It's local news that you're not going to get anywhere else and it keeps you informed about the people who live here and the things that are going on," she said.

Wong is relocating to California where her daughter lives and hopes to continue her volunteer work there.

"I think it's important to stay active," she said.

Camp Pine Tree Gives Kids Fun, Structure and Community

by Kelyn Soong

Ian Gleason, Camp Pine Tree assistant manager, says he started at the Greenbelt summer camp as a seven-year-old along with his twin brother Patrick.

The thrill of camp for Gleason, now 22, has not subsided through the years.

"I just love it, it's fun," he said. "Everything I did when I was kid that I had fun with, I just want to do that with the kids now."

The fun includes field trips, swimming, cooking, dancing, sports, arts and crafts and the annual variety show, held on Thursday, July 26 at the Greenbelt Community Center.

Camp Pine Tree 1 and 2 – for kids ages 6 to 8 and 9 to 11, respectively, and Youth on the Go (YOGO), ages 12 to 14 – put on the show for their parents and community members.

Acts included a rousing rendition of Whitney Houston's "The Greatest Love of All," by camp member William Tabron, and a dance routine to Michael Jackson's "Thriller," performed by Camp Pine Tree 2 members.

Besides these activities for campers, Camp Pine Tree holds bake sales, with proceeds for the community.

Raising Money

This year the camp decided to raise money to help kids attend the camp who could not otherwise afford it. Previous fund raisers have been held for local animal shelters and food banks.

"We're all about giving to the community," said Camp Pine Tree manager Cathy Pracht. "We're all so fortunate to be able to come to camp. We need to give back and show our appreciation."

The camp emphasizes socialization and physical activity – kids, for example, may not bring electronics. Most importantly, it provides structure for students during the summer.

This was Genna Lee's, 6, first year at Camp Pine Tree, having spent the last two summers with Kindercamp for ages 3 to 5.

Lee's mother, Genice of Greenbelt, says the camp gives her daughter a healthy summer routine.

"It gives her something to do during the summer," she said. "We really used the camps to give her structure as she's transitioning in school, because they provide her so much structure it's a good environment for her to get a routine down and interact with other kids."

Asked how many more years she plans on bringing Genna back, Lee replied, "I think as long as she's enjoying it, we'll let her keep coming back."

A couple more years and she soon could be following in Gleason's footsteps.

Camp Pine Tree variety show emcees Connor Corcoran and Patrick Gleason joke with each other during the introduction. The show was put on for family and Greenbelt community members.
